Nashville, TN and Washington, D.C. – FORBA, the nation’s largest dental practice management company focused on high-quality dental care for children in underserved communities, today announced that the company and its associated Small Smiles dental centers in the Washington, D.C. metro area will donate 1,000 child toothbrushes this month to the Washington Nationals “Bring A Smile To Haiti” earthquake relief program.

“We are proud to support the Washington Nationals ‘Bring a Smile to Haiti’ program,” said FORBA Chairman and CEO Michael G. Lindley. “Every day, we work to make a difference in the lives of the children we serve, and through this program we are able to promote the importance of dental care while making a tremendous impact on the lives of Haitians who need our help more than ever.”

“Through our partnership with Gifts In Kind International, we are able to make tangible donations that will help the people of Haiti stay healthy during their nation’s recovery,” said Nationals Community Relations Director Israel Negrón. “The Nationals organization recognizes the great need for toothbrushes in Haiti, and we are thankful to FORBA and Small Smiles for their generous contributions.”

Every year the FORBA-associated dental centers treat more than 750,000 children -- from “first tooth” to 20 years old -- at 68 dental centers across the country. To learn more, visit www.forba.com or www.smallsmiles.com.
